WELCOME

Now in its 12th year, Rutland Open Studios goes from strength to strength and I am enormously proud of the work being done by a handful of dedicated organisers to ensure that this year maintains the wonderful standard of exhibitions and displays we have witnessed in previous years.

The insight gained from visiting local artists at work in their studios serves as a spur to all with art in their hearts and it is my hope that not only will you be encouraged to further your own artistic ambitions but you may well decide to encourage the work of our exhibitors by purchasing some of the work on display in the Open Studios. I wish this wonderful venture every success.

Dear Regular Visitors,
and New Visitors,

This is the twelfth year that Rutland's Artists have invited you into our homes/Studios to see what we have to offer by way of creative inspiration. As usual we have an exciting mix of painting, sculpture, photography, print making, ceramics, and mixed media for you to enjoy.

The special event that we have to offer this year is the TASTER EXHIBITION which we are holding at Rutland County Museum in Oakham from mid May through into June. Several of us will be showing our work there and we do hope you will take time to visit the Exhibition to see whose work you would like to see more of during Open Studios month.

Please do check the Brochure to make sure which days the Artists who you want to visit have their venues open. However most of us would welcome a phone call if you want to arrange a visit on a day when we are not open! Please enjoy your visit as much as we will enjoy welcoming you to RUTLAND OPEN STUDIOS 2018.
