

Feedback email from David Wilks following the Far NE Tour on April 21 2018

Andy

Thanks for a very enjoyable day out. The scenery and instruction were great, helped no doubt by the fine, but not too hot, weather.

I think you need to be reasonably fit to climb up to the tower at Broadway and can't imagine it would be as much fun in mid-summer temps or rain/snow, but I guess you have a plan B for that section of the tour.

I thought the instruction and approach were pitched right for someone of my limited experience and looking at the quality of the photos when I got home I could see a marked improvement. Helping me adjust the settings on my camera and the tips on how to get the best out of it were most useful.

I also found the extended day long session and hands on one to one tutoring very good. I got more out of this than the previous evening group tour I had been on with another company.

The tour was a present from my daughters/son so I have marked "cost" as good on the form having checked out the web site and seen that the group size can be up to 6, but I would probably be happy to say excellent if I had had to pay for it myself on the basis of the day we had.

Thanks for the advice on editing software, I have downloaded Capture NX-D and started playing around with it, although I had difficulty finding where the photos had been squirrelled away on the Mac. Apple obviously don't want you to use anyone-else's software to edit them. Have you ever thought about offering a workshop course on photo editing?

Thanks for a great day.

Regards

David
