WELCOME TO DCPC ONLINE

Hi, I hope you are keeping well. Would you like something to help pass the time, while we are in lockdown under the coronavirus safety measures? Mike Arblaster and I have been working this week on how we can interact with members through the club website. Mostly, we have been setting up the systems behind the scenes to handle the raw to result (R2R) challenge.

Firstly, a big thank you to members who have sent in images for the R2R challenge. Also, a big thumbs up to the volunteers who have processed them. Go to the club website on Monday evening to see the week 1 results.

While you're there, why don't you pick some images from the gallery to process, and also send me some of your images to go in the gallery in future weeks?

Also, if you have any thoughts about how we can keep in touch and if you can offer to lead an initiative, please let me know.

RAW TO RESULT-R2R

Each week, on Monday evening, we will post the R2R images processed during the past week. You will find these in the "after" gallery except for images that have not been processed by three reviewers. Where an image has been processed by one or two reviewers the original image along with its "after" version(s) will stay in the "before" gallery until it has been reviewed by three people or until it has been in the "before" gallery for three weeks whichever comes sooner, at which point it will be moved to the "after" gallery. You will also see a document showing thumbnails of the before and after images side-by-side as well as the processing notes from the member(s) who edited them. We will add more images to the "before" gallery so there is always a good choice for you to have a go at. Because we want to keep the challenge alive, "Before" images will be removed after three weeks, or when three people have chosen them to edit, whichever comes sooner. The "before" gallery will then be topped up from the image bank.

We would like to send the "after" images to the original author & the editors, as there are limitations to the quality and size we can display on website. If you edit an image and would prefer that we do not share it with the author, please let me know when you return your edited image.

So far, I have received images from only a few members for the gallery. I need more please. I will keep them in the image bank to add in future weeks.

Contact me at bren.howard1@btinternet.com and see last week's bulletin for full details. If you have any feedback or suggestions to improve this initiative please do get in touch.

MEMBER ARTICLES/BLOGS-"WRITE UP YOUR PHOTOGRAPHIC PROJECT"

Thank you to Paul and Christine for getting the ball rolling with members' articles. Again, we need more of these. Please email Mike Arblaster at mike.arblaster@virgin.net with your contributions. We will aim to post one on the website each week.

PREVIOUS ISSUES OF THE NEWSLETTER

This newsletter is mailed directly to all club members. Previous issues are also available on the club website under "online club activities"
